

Modern Civil Rights Movements in the Pacific Northwest

Station 1: Fort Lawton Occupation & Daybreak Star Indian Cultural Center

What movements inspired the Native American rights movement in the 1970s?

What is the history of Fort Lawton? What claims do Native Americans have on the land?

In bullet points, describe what happened on March 8, 1970 at Fort Lawton (including what happened to the activists)

How did Bob Satiacum compare the fort to reservations in his statement?

What was "Resurrection City"?

What was agreed to in November 1971?

Read over the Daybreak Star Center's vision, mission, and goals. What is the purpose of the center - what does it hope to achieve?

Station 2: Central Area Civil Rights Committee & CORE

What issues did African Americans face in Seattle that the civil rights movement was attempting to address?

What tactics were being employed by the civil rights community in the early 1960s?

In bullet points, describe the Central Area Civil Rights Committee. What organizations did it encompass? What did the leadership look like? How many members? etc.

What was the most active organization with the CACRC? What types of protests did they initiate?

What was the DEEDs campaign in 1964? What were the results?

What was "Operation Window-shop"? What were the results?

How did the Picture Floor pickets reveal a shift in CORE's strategies?

What caused the weakening of the CACRC in 1968?

What was the significance of the CACRC for black civil rights? For other civil rights movements?

Station 3: Chicano/Latino Activism/El Centro de la Raza

Who were the Brown Berets? How were they formed and what was their purpose?

What did Chicano activism look like at UW in the 1960s and 1970s?

Who were Las Chicanas? Why were they formed and what was their purpose?

Why did the Chicano/Latino community call for the establishment of a community service center for Latinos?

Describe in bullet points the occupation of the Old Beacon Hill school.

What is El Centro de la Raza? What's the organization's mission

What is the significance of this activism in the 1960s and 1970s?

