

Cosmic Sexy Time: Crash Course World Mythology #3

Available at <https://youtu.be/7fHDliqLz9w> or just youtube/google "Crash Course World Mythology 3"

1. The idea of something growing from a _____ is a logical analogy to _____, but multiple _____ seem to be fertile.
2. When a creator god is alone and presumably male, it suggests a _____ culture since creation occurs without a female presence.
 - a. How is the story of Mbombo's creation from the Boshongo Bantu people in Africa an example of this?
3. Few myths involve more pain than the Greek creation story involving _____.
4. A number of cultures have creation myths that feature something called a _____.
 - a. In one Indian creation myth, found in the Satapatha Brahmana, the creator god, in this story called Prajapati, forms a cosmic egg after creating _____. Out of which this egg come various creatures, but most importantly, the _____ and the rest of the _____.
 - b. There's an early _____ creation story that's similar to the one from India, in that it also has an egg.
 - c. Describe the Chinese creation myth which combines the cosmic egg trope with a world-parent myth:
 - i. World-parent myths are where a creator god brings the universe into being, through actual _____, or as in this case, by being _____ into aspects of the known world.
 - ii. Often the world-parent is portrayed as _____.

